

Weak facets are under the new snow

Riding around Cooke City on all aspects we found a weak layer of near-surface facets buried under the new snow. This layer may persist for a while and with additional weight (new snow or wind-loading) it could avalanche in the coming weeks. This picture shows the top 80 cm of the snowpack. Photo: GNFAC

Advisory Region
Cooke City