

This avalanche happened sometime Monday (3/19) night or very early Tuesday (3/20) morning. The debris ran far into the relatively flat terrain below the cliffs. The powder cloud/air blast shook large mature trees and blew the snow off their limbs. Photo: GNFA

Advisory Region
Bridger Range
Longitude
-110.93W

Latitude

45.80N

Bridger Range, 2012-03-20