

Wet Snow, New Weak Layer - Taylor Fork

On shady aspects, there is a layer of weak near-surface facets developing. These could become a problem if they get buried by new snow this weekend. On sunny aspects, the snow surface is getting wet and is becoming weak as it heats up in the afternoon.

In this photo, observe how both issues can occur on the same slope.

Photo: GNFAC

Advisory Region
Southern Madison
Longitude

-111.27W

Latitude

45.06N

Southern Madison, 2021-03-17