

6' of snow in the Centennials

The snowpack in the Centennials is remarkably similar to the Lionhead area outside West Yellowstone: 6 feet of snow at 9,200 feet. The stability will get worse with snow this weekend (19-21 March) because the surface snow is weak and the new snow will not bond to it (near-surface facets). Photo: GNFAAC

Advisory Region
Centennial Range

Longitude

-111.47W

Latitude

44.56N

Centennial Range, 2021-03-19